RICHEST MAN ON EARTH.
Like the English millionaires, those of the Czar's domains mostly derive their revenues from landed property. While the Briton, however, devotes a large part of his gross income toward improving his possessions and to the amelioration of the lot of his tenants in one way or another, the Russian, on the other hand, extracts every farthing that he can from his property and spends it upon himself, the result being that agriculture in Russia is going from bad to worse, that formerly fertile and productive estates have become barren and impoverished, and that while the peasantry are in a state of misery, bordering on famine, the nobles themselves have been obliged to mortgage or sell their lands and are at the end of their financial tether. Of course there are some exceptions, such as, for instance, the Demidoffs and Scheremetieffs and the Yousouppoffs. The wealth of the Demidoff is so great that it is beyond calculation, and strangely enough the fortune is of relatively recent creation, its founder having been a country blacksmith in the days of Peter the Great. It was while in the Ural mountains that the latter broke one of the most valuable English pistols. A village smith mended it so quickly and so well, that the Czar was delighted and asked the man's name. "Demidoff, I shall remember you," said he as he rode off. The poor man was beginning to think that Peter had forgotten him, when there came an official document adorned with the imperial seal, granting him the freehold of a great tract of crown land in the neighborhood of the village. Demidoff went to work on his new property, and found thereon inexhaustible mines of iron, silver and malachite. Young Elina Demidoff—he does not bear in Russia the Italian title of prince generally prefixed to his name by visiting foreigners—is at the present moment the richest man in the world, Princess Yousouppoff, with her great turquoise mines, coming next in rank. Fortunately both of them are more freehand and generous than their respective immediate predecessors as head of the family, the late Anatole Demidoff and the late Prince Yousouppoff having been alike renowned for their meanness and avarice, of which almost incredible stories are related.
CLARKE COUNTY NOTES.
Duncan Memorial Church, of Berryville, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday night of last week, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Nora, daughter of Mr. James W. Marshall, of this county, to Mr. C. Edgar Lancaster, recently of Greenbrier county, W. Va.
Some inquiries are being made about Clarke lands that are on the market, but no sales have taken place except that of "Chapel Hill," which was disposed of at $10 per acre. The farm contained 164 acres. Parties wanting lands represent that they can buy at lower figures east of the Ridge, though the quality can hardly equal our Valley lands. Still, it cannot be doubted that the value of lands is affected by the price at which the products of the same is selling.
Owing to the critical illness of the mother of Jno. O. Crown, the marriage of his daughter, Miss Bettie, and Mr. D. K. Meade, instead of being solemnized at Grace Episcopal church on the evening of March 27th, as heretofore announced, was performed at the home of the bride's parents, at Berryville on the evening of the 26th, Rev. Edward Wall officiating. The wedding pair left on the evening train for a visit to Washington and some of the northern cities.
Mr. Thomas H. Burwell, of Millwood, has succeeded in organizing a club to restock that section of our county with partridges. They have ordered twelve dozen birds, which they expect to receive this week. These gentlemen are in New York. They gentlemen are to be commended for their practical efforts to restock the lands of their section with this fine game bird, and clubs ought to be formed in other parts of the county to accomplish this same end.—Courier.

Two quarts cream. One quart new milk. Two large teaspoons of brown sugar. Put in skillet with one tablespoon of water and stir over hot fire until a dark brown color. Warm the cream and add the burnt sugar. Sweeten. Flavor with vanilla to taste, and freeze.

DRY GOODS.
SPECIAL NOTICE.
Having paid particular attention to our Dress Lining Department the last few seasons, our success has led us to lay in a large well-assorted stock. It will pay those desiring such goods to examine our line before purchasing. No trouble to show and price the goods. Prices to suit the times. Our buyer, Mr. Louis Eichberg, is now in New York. Wait for our spring opening. We have purchased a large and well-assorted stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods—a new departure—which we will try and make succeed by selling good goods and handsome styles at popular prices.
